

NATALIA SAFRAN

Singer and songwriter, Natalia writes, produces and performs her music with brother Mikolaj Mick Jaroszyk. Her debut album 'High Noon' was funded entirely by fans from all over the world via a crowdfunding music community Sellaband, where she quickly rose to the top of over ten thousand artists, in record time gathering $50,000 to produce her album.

Truly an international effort, the album was recorded in the US and Poland where Natalia is originally from. It contains 12 songs varying in vibe from chilled out pop to trip hop or as it has been called 'Rocker Chill'. A few of the tracks were co-produced by Kiran Shahani of Supreme Beings of Leisure and Bitter:Sweet and mixed by Rob Chiarelli (Madonna, Pink, Christina Aguilera, Ray Charles, Quincy Jones, Shakira). One of the Shahani co-productions is 'Big Wave' with the video shot on the Mojave Desert by David Lynch's right hand man, cinematographer Dan Kneece (Blue Velvet, Wild at Heart, Twin Peaks).

'High Noon' was released in Poland to great critical acclaim and commercial success. Within a few short weeks Natalia exploded onto the Polish music scene capturing the hearts and imaginations of the Polish audience and critics alike, her face and sound becoming instantly recognizable. 'Hey You', the first single of the album, topped the radio charts ahead Adele, Colplay, and Florence and The Machine.

'Hey You' also graces the soundtracks of 'I Hate Valentine's Day' with Nia Vardalos and John Corbett and 'New in Town' with Renee Zellweger and Harry Connick Jr., and it can be found on the film's soundtrack album.

Currently Natalia's songs can be heard in four movies - 'All I Feel Is You' as the official track of Paul Walker's last drama 'Hours'; 'The One For Me' in 'Best Night Ever' and on the soundtrack album of 'The Starving Games' and 'Say Goodbye' in the opening scene of the thriller 'Mindscape'.

Another one of Natalia's tracks will appear on Kiran Shahani's ButtonPusher album next to songs by such artists as Angela McCluskey (Telepopmusik), Lou lou (Thievery Corporation), and Kelli Ali (Sneaker Pimps).
